POLICE AND FIRE CHIEFS in Madison are not going to be reappointed, according to Mayor-elect John Bellcoff. Removal of Police Chief Don Bridick and Fire Chief Mike Macek are among administrative changes planned by the new mayor, who took office May 7. Bridick said Bellcoff promised prior to the election there would be no job changes. Bellcoff chose not to speak in more detail on the administrative staff changes he plans until after being sworn in.

GRANITE CITY'S SEWERS, a chronic problem for residents and city officials, were discussed recently by Mayor-elect Von Dee Cruse and members of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. The meeting left Cruse feeling "really good" because the IEPA possibly could share a significant portion of the money needed to repair the ailing sewer system. A figure of 70 percent was mentioned as being the state's share of the cost, which could be derived from Gov. James Thompson's "Build Illinois" plan. The plan asks the Legislature to allocate money for water quality improvements. Per the IEPA's advice, Cruse said he plans to have an engineering survey done on the sewer system to determine the cost of repairs.

Williams

THE REV. John Henry Williams has taken over as president of the Venice Board of Park Commissioners for 1985-86. The action follows the resignation of Arnold A. Johnson, who formally resigned April 30 to take over as manager of the Venice Park District. The outgoing president was elected five weeks ago, but informally resigned April 13, 11 days after the election. In his formal resignation announcement, Johnson said, "I have enjoyed my tenure on the board. However, I feel I can be of greatest service to the board in my new role of park manager."

CANDY IS DANDY, but liquor can't be sold by in Granite City's grocery stores, a situation 4th Ward Alderwoman Sharon Perjak proposes to change. Perjak contends the city can expect increased revenue from liquor sales in grocery stores. Some liquor store owners and church members oppose the idea. The Rev. Jack J. Cicciello of the First Baptist Church of Granite City said, "If this is the only way the city can think of making revenue is off people's backs, then we have some pretty uncreative people in City Hall." A caucus on the matter will be held Tuesday, May 21, at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

A HERO: Lavon Jordan reacted quickly upon seeing his neighbor Harold Johnson, burning alive. Johnson's clothing caught fire as he poured gasoline into a metal container in preparation to burn trash, and Jordan reacted by throwing "the man on the ground and rolled him over and over until the flames were out." The fire occurred April 11 and it was 16 days later, on April 27, that Johnson left the hospital. Jordan received first degree burns to his hands and arms. After hearing of the rescue, former Acting-mayor Thomas Gordon presented Jordan a framed humanitarian certificate during a City Council meeting. Jordan shrugged off the "hero" label, saying he "just did what was necessary."

He owned and operated Davis Funeral Home at 21st Street and Cleveland Boulevard since 1947. Prior to that, he served in the U.S. Navy from 1942 to 1946 as a chief petty officer.

He graduated from Shurtleff College, Alton, having played basketball and football there, and attended Landig College of Mortuary in Houston, Texas, and Worsham College of Mortuary in Chicago.

He was a member of St. Peter Evangelical United Church of Christ and a past president of the Granite City Kiwanis Club and Southwestern Illinois Conference of Mayors. Area veterans recall V-E Day

By DAVE WHALEY
Staff writer

On May 7, 1945, Joe Bieniecki wrote his wife, Ann, from Germany. He had heard on the British Broadcasting Company that the war would be over by noon that day.

He had a feeling it wouldn't be long.

"The war" was World War II, the biggest and bloodiest war in the history of mankind.

Bieniecki, a native of Granite City, was there for the very end of the fighting in Europe. It all finally came to a close 40 years ago today — May 8, 1945 — V-E (Victory in Europe) Day.

Bieniecki arrived in Europe around Easter 1945, about the time Allied Forces were nailing down the victory.

The firing was pretty hot and heavy at the time, he said. "All you had to do was be over there about two seconds and you could tell that."

Bieniecki, 67, with the 20th Armored Division of the U.S. Army and his outfit was one of those responsible for liberating Dachau, one of the most infamous Nazi death camps.

"I was able to catch a glimpse of some of the people in the camps," he said. "They looked pretty miserable, to say the least. It makes it hard to forget."

Another Granite City native who fought in Europe toward the end of the war was Vasil Fryntzko. Fryntzko, 70, hit the beach at Normandy on June 7, 1944, or as he refers to it, "D plus one (the day after D-Day)."

"I was there for 11 months in the front lines," he said. "I was with the 2nd Infantry Division and 15th Field Artillery Headquarters Battalion."

Fryntzko served as a radio dispatcher to front line troops, relaying messages from forward observers to "tell the guns what to do."

Despite the horrors of the war, Fryntzko was able to enjoy some of his time in Germany.

"For the last month there, we didn't hardly do anything but play baseball," he said. "And we were fairly close to Berlin. We also hooked up with the Russians toward the end and liberated some Uzbeks."

Uzbeks, Fryntzko said, were a small group of people captured by the Germans. They were vegetarians, as Fryntzko found out when he tried to offer them food.

"I speak many languages, Russian among them, so this Russian colonel told me, 'Fryntzko, let's see you shine,'" he said. "I went up to these people and offered them some meat. You can imagine how surprised I was when they turned me down."

After discovering they were

Fryntzko

Bieniecki

vegetarians, the Army offered the Uzbeks coffee and tea.

"They took about 10 or 15 pounds of tea," Fryntzko said.

Not all of Fryntzko's experiences

"Berlin was really a mess. There was hardly anything left."

were quite so nice. He was present for the Battle of the Bulge, where Allied and Axis forces suffered close to 200,000 casualties in six weeks of fighting in Belgium and Luxembourg in late 1944.

"I was riding along in a command car one morning at about 6 a.m.," he said. "We had a big antenna set up for the radio, and a German plane came along and dropped one on us. It was a pretty close call for me. That antenna set up right next to me was blown to bits. That was close."

Fryntzko found Germany to be like the United States in many ways.

JOE BIENIECKI, (standing, second from right) a native of Granite City, with some of his buddies in Waging, Germany, just before the end of World War II.

"They had those autobahns which were great to drive on," he said.

"And we had hot and cold running water in most places, so we couldn't complain. The places I saw weren't really shot up as bad as some of the other places."

Lt. Al Diak, a member of the Granite City police force for the past 27 years, remembers going into Germany on Dec. 12, 1944, with the 78th Infantry Division.

"We crossed the Rhine River and were assigned to the Ruhr Pocket," he said. "It was all but over then. It was easy to see that."

"The Battle of the Bulge was really the last stand for the Germans. They put quite a big bulge in U.S. lines, which is how the battle got its name, I guess."

"But we eventually pushed forward into Germany. Berlin was really a mess. There was hardly anything left. We met the Russians at the Elbe River and things were just about over."

Fryntzko remembered he was about to head for home when he heard the war had ended.

"I was in London, on a hospital ship, when we got the news," he said. "Everyone was gratified that there wouldn't be any subs after us on the way home."

Fryntzko got home May 15 and headed to San Antonio, Tex., before winding up with the Army at Fort Sill, Okla.

He retired from Standard Oil 11 years ago.

Diak was in Germany through the summer of 1945 and heard rumors about more action.

"We heard rumors that we might end up going to fight in the Pacific," he said. "But we never went."

Diak finally arrived home in January 1946.

"By that time, all of the hoopla was over," he said. "The GIs who came home right at the end got all the recognition."

When Bieniecki heard the war was over, his outfit had just liberated a good quantity of liquor from some SS guards.

"We had all that booze," he said. "And then we had a reason to celebrate. I know I got drunk."

Bieniecki's outfit stayed for a

GIVE ME ONE REASON WHY IT'S SAFER TO BE IN A PLANE THAN A CAR...

Hearing the angels sing out again

Captain Eddie Rickenbacker's lifeboat ordeal during World War II has become an adventure classic: "We Thought We Heard The Angels Sing," a book by James Whitaker. And the book begat a movie and no red-blooded boy could resist those desperate 21 days without being chilled by the ordeal and thrilled by its triumphant ending.

The men were weeks without food or water until a gull landed on Captain Eddie's shoulder and gave its life for the lives of those eight brave men in the life rafts.

The book ends with the rescue of the men. Son Paul's Rest Of The Story relates how Captain Eddie in his twilight years made a daily pilgrimage to the Florida waterfront to feed the gulls — in memory of that one.

Hazel Jacobsen, a sixth-grade schoolteacher in Ames, Iowa, regularly read from that book to her students. Her copy of "We Thought We Heard The Angels Sing," though dog-eared and disintegrating, was re-read a hundred times.

One of her wide-eyed student listeners was Suzanne Kelly. Suzanne grew up, graduated and one day did herself become a sixth-grade teacher. Remembering how the book had inspired her, Suzanne perpetuated the tradition of reading to her classes from "We Thought We Heard The Angels Sing."

And Suzanne Kelly told them the rest of the story about Captain Eddie's lifelong gratitude.

But her youngsters began wondering what had happened to others of the eight men in those life rafts.

One of them, Amy Murphy, wrote to me. I could not tell her where the survivors are now.

So the youngsters — sixth-graders, remember — as a class project set out to find out on their own.

They combed old newspapers, library books and museum files. They located the son of one survivor and he led them to others; those contacts led to others.

The youngsters report to me that they have now located four of the eight who are still alive: John Bartek in New Jersey, James Reynolds and Bill Cherry in California. John De Angelis in Pennsylvania.

And the youngsters invited the four to a reunion in Ames, Iowa.

American Airlines provided transportation free.

A local Holiday Inn provided lodging free.

The four visited Warren Meeker

School on Burnett Street where another invited guest was former teacher Hazel Jacobsen.

The rest of the time the men had to themselves.

Four men who survived together the starvation, the sun, the sharks and the sea — but then lost touch.

After 42 years they have "heard the angels sing" again.

Everyone wants his own station

The move by Ted Turner to take over the CBS company has unleashed a series of other attempts by entrepreneurs to go after communications companies.

A week ago P.T. Raider, who owns an FM radio station in Zero Degrees, Wyo., announced he was declaring war on the multibillion-dollar Starfish Broadcasting Company.

At a press conference in New York, P.T. said he always desired to own a network, and he felt he could do a much better job than Starfish in serving the public.

Although he refused to say how he would manage the company, he did vow to fire the entire news staff and replace them with "American citizens who believe in God and Jesse Helms."

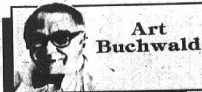

Asked how much cash he was willing to put up for Starfish stock, Raider said he was offering something better than money. "I will swap one share of Raider Communications stock for one share of Starfish Broadcasting."

When it was pointed out that Starfish was worth $3 billion and the sole Raider property, FM station YUK, was only worth $1,200, P.T. said, "I might sweeten the pot by throwing in a dead cat with each junk bond."

Asked where he would get the money to pay for the dead cats, Raider said once he got control he would sell off the Starfish publishing company, the Starfish record division and the Starfish motion picture studios.

"While all these companies make money, I will not saddle Starfish with more debt than it can handle."

A Wall Street Journal reporter asked Raider if it wasn't true that the only reason Starfish would be in such heavy debt was because of his hostile takeover bid.

Art Buchwald

P.T. told the reporter if he didn't retract the question Raider Communications would buy the Journal as well.

Raider said he was offering something better than money.

A year ago Raider would have been laughed at for trying to pull off such a deal. But with the recent mergers in which takeover barons have been getting rich by high-flying tactics, no one on Wall Street is laughing at anybody anymore.

An analyst for Strong & Hairy, the brokerage firm, said, "Raider has a good chance of taking over Starfish. The dead cat strategy has been used very successfully in a lot of merger deals this year. As long as there are people out there who would rather have a dead cat than a live company, P.T. is a threat."

Belton Lewish, who follows the entertainment business for Goose & Gander, thought Starfish could fight off Raider. "But," he warned, "it won't be cheap. The big boys who invest for the institutions don't care what happens to Starfish as long as they make money out of it. If they can get in and out of the stock before the company goes belly up, they couldn't care if the Ayatollah Khomeini takes over the company."

while after hearing a rumor the Italians and Yugoslavians might have a conflict.

"We ended up in Austria, about 50 miles from the Yugoslavian border," he said. "By the time we got there, things had cooled down and they pulled our whole division."

Bieniecki, who retired from National Steel eight years ago, had two brothers in the Army and one of them, Ed, ended up in the Philippines.

"When I got home, it was no big deal," he said. "I just got off the train and called my wife."

Fryntzko, Diak and Bieniecki had differing views on President Reagan visiting the graves of Nazi soldiers. "I don't see anything wrong with it," Fryntzko said. "It's been a long time. There has been some protest, but you don't hear Israel saying too much about it. They know who will help them down the line."

Diak agreed. "I really don't see any problems with it," he said. "I don't think Reagan is really going to honor them. It's just a visit. There's really nothing that bad about it, especially when he was invited by the chancellor (Helmut Kohl)."

Bieniecki, however, saw things differently.

"I really don't know how he can do that," he said. "To see the kinds of things we saw, it was just unbelievable. People can talk about letting bygones be bygones, but they never saw what I saw. You can feel pretty bad about it."

"The thing about those Nazis is, they didn't care who they killed. It's one thing in man-to-man combat to kill another soldier, but they just killed hundreds of thousands of women and children without thinking about it. The Russians lost millions of people during the war, and most of them weren't fighting men.

"I just know if they (Nazis) had been able to get over here, and if they would have gotten the (atom) bomb before we did, they would have dropped one on the United States."

"I agree with a lot of the things Reagan is doing, but I just can't see him bringing back those memories."

Arson Awareness Week slated

Gov. James R. Thompson has proclaimed this week as Arson Awareness Week in Illinois in conjunction with the national observance.

"Although Illinois has made substantial progress in reducing the incidence of arson in the state, it still is one of the most insidious crimes affecting our citizens," the governor said.

"Arson destroys lives, property, natural resources, neighborhoods and jobs. It also disrupts educational and manufacturing systems and it causes insurance rates and property taxes to increase.

"Arson can only be stopped when citizens recognize the severe damage it causes to property and lives and cooperate with police and fire officials in its prevention."

The Office of the State Fire Marshal (OSFM) provides a fire and arson investigation service 24 hours a day, seven days a week. The toll-free Arson Hotline number is 1-800-252-2947.

The number is available to all fire and police officers to request assistance from OSFM on fire investigations.

Any citizen who wishes to report suspicious or arson fires and provide information leading to the arrest and conviction of arsonists also is asked to call this number. Such information is kept confidential, it was stressed.

Honored by lawyers

Nelson "Nellie" Hagnauer has been awarded the 1985 Liberty Bell Award by the Madison County Bar Association. Hagnauer received the award at the annual Law Day banquet held May 1.

In presenting the award, Bar President William S. Beatty noted Hagnauer's key role in providing new courtroom space in the County Courthouse in Edwardsville.

Hagnauer, with the aid of the Madison County Board, has been instrumental in increasing courtroom space from the four original courtroom to the present number, 12.

Further expansion is under way, with two new courtrooms soon to be in service on the second floor of the Courthouse. In the past 10 years, all the courtrooms have been completely renovated.

Hagnauer is County Board chairman and Granite City Township supervisor.

Beatty said, "The Grant Committee and the Buildings Committee of the County Board have also played big roles in the expansion and modernization."

"This expansion program has provided the citizens of Madison County with an appropriate and dignified setting in which to present complaints and resolve disputes."

Hagnauer received the award on a unanimous vote of the Bar Association.

Other law day activities included mock trial presentations by members of the Bar in Madison County secondary schools.

Journals to sponsor fall travel exposition

Entertainment, prizes and gala fun will be the order for the second annual 1985 Suburban Journals Travel Exposition to be held at the newly-renovated Union Station Complex at the Omni International Hotel on Nov. 22, 23, and 24.

Legendary Union Station is being developed by the Rouse Company—the same company that has such spectacular successes at Faneuil Hall Market Place in Boston, Harborside in Baltimore, and the Grand Avenue in Milwaukee.

Behind the imposing facade of this national historic landmark is the most exciting meeting concept in years. A shopping, dining, entertainment and conference center, gift-wrapped in one of the country's most intriguing sight-seeing attractions, St. Louis Union Station. It's a virtually a destination in itself—the perfect place to attract consumers, agents, and vendors for a festival celebrating the world of travel.

The travel exposition will begin on Friday, Nov. 22, when the agents meet the suppliers at the "Gala Opening." After the private trade show, the public is invited to the consumer portion of this exciting event on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

For further information and exhibitor registration forms, contact Linda Buchana, show manager, 1-314-401-1111.

Williams pleads for cooperation

By VALERIE EVENDEN
Staff writer

An impassioned plea for closer cooperation between city officials and Venice Park District commissioners was made by the Rev. John Henry Williams at the April 30 meeting of the Venice City Council.

Speaking on behalf of the Venice Park Board, the minister said several plans are being made for future activities, including the district's summer recreation program and a citywide walk-a-thon and mortgage burning June 1.

Approval for the walk-a-thon as a cooperative venture between the city and park district was given by City Council members.

Although the route of the walk has not yet been finalized, Rev. Williams said it will take place "all through the city, starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 1."

"We hope all of you and the city workers and the public will take part and this will bring a closeness between the park district and the council," the minister said.

"With your support the park district can 'Come Alive in '85' and we are here to ask you to work together with us. If you have any suggestions please let us know."

Chief Smith (Venice Police Chief Farris Smith) and his men already work closely with the park district personnel and we feel there is adequate protection for everyone in our park, whether it's my mother or your mother who wants to enjoy going there."

"We may be in for a 'long hot summer,' but we feel we will be able to handle it. We plan to enforce the law so people feel free to come and enjoy the park."

"There will be no intimidation by hoodlums or anything like that. People do not need to be afraid to come to the park, thinking women will be raped or children will be hurt."

"Good citizens want the law enforced and I feel the police are doing a good job," he added.

Rev. Williams also announced the mortgage for the Venice Park District Recreation Center will be "burned" at 6:30 p.m. June 1 at the recreation center. A social hour will follow. The final payment on the building was made last November.

In other action, the Venice Board announced a proposed sale of land owned by a property owner, said by Sylvester Franklin to install a public address system in the Venice Senior Citizens' Community Center at a cost of $985.

Two other proposals estimated the cost of the project at $2,600 and $2,100, Mayor Tyrone Echols reported.

Vehicle guards will be placed at the rear of the senior center, the mayor said in response to a question from 2nd Ward Alderman George Mangiaracino.

The alderman said complaints have been received from residents, who report vehicles backing from a rear parking area into a fence at that location.

3rd Ward Alderman John Ervin sought clarification on legal procedures open to the city concerning vacant property around which weeds and grass are becoming unsightly. "The weeds are about 4 feet tall already," the alderman said.

City Attorney Lawrence Hartman said the owner should be given a 10-day notice before a complaint is filed. The city could then cut the grass and file a lien against the property owner.

"We are going to get tough on these absentee landlords and we will attach a lien to the property if we have to," Mayor Echols said.

A property owner in the 1200 block of Oriole Street also came under criticism from the mayor, who said, "I want the police department to go there tomorrow and inform them that they have to move."

1st Ward Alderman Philip Daniels reported "someone tried to rent a house the other day on which only makeshift repairs had been made. People seeking to rent should get a permit (for occupancy) first before renting the property," he said.

Building Inspector Joe Brooks noted that one landlord "gives people the key and they move in and then they call me." One dwelling he went to recently had "water standing in the floor," he said.

Echols asked for a thorough written report about this specific situation, adding, "Bring him in here," speaking of the property owner in question.

Answering an inquiry from 2nd Ward Alderman Hank Sveziz about the poor condition of Broadway, a state thoroughfare, the mayor said, "They (state highway division) keep saying they are going to fix it when the weather breaks."

A REPLICA OF THE STAFF that Father Junipero Serra carried in his travels through California is lifted by Lt. John A. Orr and his wife, Karen, former Granite City residents.

Orrs aid sainthood project

The Knights of Columbus Color Corps, of which Navy Lt. John A. Orr is a member, was decked out in full regalia + tuxedos, admiral's chapeaux with plumes, capes and swords + as about 175 Knights of Columbus members and families paraded through downtown Ventura, Calif., on a quest to make Father Junipero Serra a saint.

Orr and his wife, Karen, former Granite Cityans, have been based at Point Mugu, Calif.

The march took them to a mission + the San Buenaventura Mission + where a rosary and mass were said honoring the mission's founder.

In the 1770s, Thomas Jefferson, John Hancock and others were in the process of establishing a new nation. On the West Coast, Father Serra was establishing nine missions in California.

He was 56 years old and in poor health when he founded his first mission, San Fernando de Velicata, in the Baja California area. He was small in stature, 5 feet, 2 inches, and weighed less than 120 pounds, but his determination allowed him to carry on his mission. The San Buenaventura Mission was the last founded by Father Serra, the Orrs report.

California Knights have made canonization of Father Serra a major project this year. Two marches are now under way in the state, one from the North and one from the South, to call attention to his accomplishments.

Each group of marchers bears a replica of the priest's staff. The marches will converge in May in Monterey at the Knights' state convention. The staff will then be sent to Pope John Paul II in Rome.

Orr has been in the Navy 18 years. A 4th Degree Knight, he has been in the Knights' Centro, Calif., for the next three years.

Sykes reelected to post

By DAVE WHALEY

Staff writer

George Sykes was reelected to his position as president of the Granite City Park Board May 1.

Sykes was the only nominee for the post and was elected unanimously as the board reorganized for the 1985-86 year.

Also elected unanimously to offices were: Jeff Worthen, vice president; John Mink, treasurer; Randall Robertson, attorney; and Frank Rea, secretary.

Dave Nolan was reappointed as director of parks and recreation for the park district. His salary was set at $23,166 for the year.

Mink's salary was set at $7,020, Robertson's at $9,100 and Rea's at $7,576.

Robertson will be serving in his 32nd year as attorney for the district and Rea is in his 31st year as secretary.

Also at the meeting, Nancy Sanders Miles and Dora Darnell were sworn in for six-year terms on the board.

Miles had already served a two-year term before being re-elected in the April 2 election, while Darnell will be serving her first term. Other members are Sykes, Worthen and Barry Loman.

The board also decided to keep its cutoff dates for admission into the park district's preschool program the same as those set by the Granite City School Board.

The school district now requires that students entering kindergarten turn 5 years old on or before Dec. 1, rather than Dec. 31.

The district plans to keep advancing that date by one month annually until it reaches Sept. 1. The park district will use the same dates as the school board.

"There was the possibility of a child being eligible for our program twice since the school district changed its rules," Sykes said. "We want to avoid having them go through the same thing twice."

Nolan reported to the board that the Wilson Park swimming pool is closed because filled with water. He said some repairs will be needed for a crack in the main valve.

"It was replaced in the early '70s, so you're looking at something which will last 15 years," he said. "But the pool seems to be holding water now."

The board decided to hold a free admission day at the pool on June 7, the last day of school. Nolan said he still expects the pool to open May 25.

The board announced it will hold a special meeting May 15 to discuss personnel matters and the budget for the fiscal year. The meeting will begin and go into closed session at 6 p.m.

Police to hold benefit dance

Members of the Madison Police Unit 110 are making plans for their annual benefit police dance.

According to Officer Tom Voloski, president of the police club, they are already working on getting the dance ad book together and tickets will be available to the public soon.

The dance, to be held June 14, will feature the music of Joey James and orchestra.

It will be held in the new Madison Annexes, Post 204, 1711 Kennedy Drive, Madison, beginning at 9 p.m.

Tickets in advance or at the door are $4.

Proceeds from the dance go to help many local charitable causes, such as underprivileged children, needy families and numerous civic organizations.

The police club also helps support various children and youth activities, such as safety poster contests and programs in the grade schools and Explorer Post 10-4.

Child support and the law

"He don't pay, he can't visit the kids!" How many times have you heard that one? It is a natural gut reaction in an emotional setting, but it does not follow the law. Many people have been wrongly informed (and use it as an excuse to avoid an obligation) that if the non-custodial parent does not pay his or her child support, then he has no right to visit with his children and vice versa, if he or she is denied visitation then child support does not have to be paid. That philosophy is based on an "eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth" and has been rejected by the western civilized world as expressed by statute and common law.

For example, Jane has been awarded custody of two children in a divorce decree. Dick has quit making payments, but still expects to visit with his children, even when he also missed several visitation periods. Jane says, "No!" Jane has no right to make that determination on her own, short of some severe situation or circumstances that warrant the refusal other than Dick's failure to pay support. Jane's remedy is to apply to the court for some sanction to force Dick's compliance with the support order. The court has many avenues available to remedy the problem. The same is true if Jane denies Dick visitation. Dick's course of action is to continue his payments, and apply to the court for relief and an appropriate order. Child support and visitation are independent obligations.

The scenario above is very typical and very simplified. There are many variables in the law and the proper procedure for someone in one of the above predicaments may depend on his or her own particular facts. Before you try to enforce the law by your own method and end up causing problems for everyone, including the most important persons involved — the children, consult your lawyer and obtain his advice.

Youth night held

Officers of Jobs Daughters Bethel 49, Boy Scout Explorer Post 10-4 and James Stuart Chapter Order of DeMolay were guests of George Washington High Twelve Club 539 of Granite City at Walton's Restaurant in Cottonwood Mall, Edwardsville, on April 12 for their youth night.

Following the dinner, Leonard Miller, president of the High Twelve Club, presented a check to the Job's Daughters through their honored queen, Carmen Joyce, and to the James Stuart Chapter Order of DeMolay through their master counselor, Ralph P. McKinney Jr. Miller also recognized Explorer Post 10-4 through their president, M. F. Foley. The explorer post was given a contribution earlier in the year.

Guest speakers whose talks were youth-oriented were Kelly J. Hogan of Granite City and Harold Ewing of Belleville. Nick Strange, adult leader of Explorer Post 10-4, spoke briefly on the post activities and remarked that the post had many members from both Madison and Granite City. Edward C. Bieser, executive officer for Illinois DeMolay, in his remarks said that Michael P. Knight, master counselor of DeMolay Association of Northern Illinois, recently selected as the International DeMolay of the Year for 1984, is also very active in the Boy Scout Explorer program in the Chicago area and is presently serving as president of the National Council of Law Enforcement Explorer Posts.

At the close of the meeting, members and guests were given attendance prizes.

LAURA CRITES of Granite City won the title of American Princess at the American Beauty Pageant April 21 at the Granite City Township Hall. She also took first place in special modeling and photogenic. She will compete in Galesburg for the American Beauty state title June 27-30. Laura was sponsored by Jan's Hallmark Shop and Bob's Flowers.

Guthrie, sales manager, was honored as one of the top sales managers in AMC's Kansas City zone; he and his daughter, Kristy Lynne, live in Collinsville.

Homer Brown

Homer O. Brown, 78, of 2148 Benton St., Ill. for three years, died at 1:20 p.m. Saturday, May 4, at St. Elizabeth Medical Center, where he was a patient for one week. Born in Herculaneum, Mo., he lived in this area since 1941. Brown worked at Granite City Steel for 30 years and retired there in 1971 as a welder.

Unemployment declines for 2nd straight month

By JACK C. VENTIMIGLIA

Unemployment took another good turn for the area, down to a single digit, according to the latest figures released by Velda Gerstenecker, Illinois Department of Job Security, Belleville.

Unemployment declined 2.1 percent from February through March for the five-county area, which includes Madison, St. Clair, Clinton, Jersey and Monroe counties. The number seeking jobs on a regional level fell by 7,575 for the period, from 33,225 to 26,650.

The decline comes as no surprise to Gerstenecker, who said warmer weather means employment picks up for those working outdoors.

According to Gerstenecker, "Unemployment drops as annual recalls and hiring occurs in construction, transportation, retail trade and services."

Gerstenecker had expressed optimism last month improving weather would bring the area out of double-digit unemployment figures.

Following is an area unemployment review:

GRANITE CITY
February: 12.6 percent, 2,350 persons. March: 10.4, 1,925. Decrease: 2.2, 425.

EAST ST. LOUIS

BELLEVILLE

MADISON COUNTY

Rothenberg case headed for SSC

By SUSAN K. MILLER
Staff writer

Whether or not David Mark Rothenberg, who has been convicted of transporting stolen goods and whose murder conspiracy conviction was overturned, should be reinstated as a lawyer is slated to be argued before the Illinois Supreme Court May 23.

Rothenberg, a former Collinsville lawyer and resident, was disbarred Jan. 31, 1977, after being convicted in October 1976 for transporting $100,000 in stolen jewelry across state lines.

"I WAS guilty of the crime charged in the indictment," Rothenberg said in a brief filed with the state Supreme Court. "I feel totally ashamed and humiliated, but I can't feel sorry for myself because nobody did it to me. What it has put my children through, my wife and my family and friends is unforgivable."

In June 1983, six and half years after his disbarment, Rothenberg's attorney filed a petition requesting that Rothenberg be allowed to practice law again. He had been licensed to practice in Illinois and Missouri.

Both a hearing and review board of the Illinois Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission recommended against his reinstatement.

Rothenberg is alleging that both boards erred.

A BRIEF on behalf of Rothenberg was filed March 11 by attorney Robert Dobry of Springfield. In the brief, Rothenberg, 41, said he now lives in St. Louis with his second wife and works for Navy Brand Manufacturing Co., a chemical supplier of maintenance and industrial chemicals.

Rothenberg's brief refers to his good standing in St. Louis. Among character references were statements by a Belleville physician and radiologist, Francis E. Bihss; a Clayton, Mo., lawyer, Sheldon Winestein; and a Belleville lawyer, Roza Gossage.

Gossage states, "His general reputation among his friends and associates and people in St. Louis for honesty and integrity seems to be good."

THE ILLINOIS Attorney Registration and Disciplinary Commission in Springfield has a different view of Rothenberg's reputation.

The attorney disciplinary commission filed a brief April 16 with the Supreme Court stating that the Madison County Bar Association, along with the bar group in St. Clair County and eight other attorneys, has gone on record as opposing Rothenberg's reinstatement.

The attorney disciplinary commission says Rothenberg is not fit to practice law in Illinois. "Petitions (Rothenberg) lacks the emotional stability to cope with unfortunate circumstances that occur frequently in the lives of many people. He also lacks the emotional stability to practice law," the brief said.

ROTHEBERG, in his brief, said, "I have consulted with a psychologist and a psychiatrist, but not for a mental disorder or disease. I consulted with them concerning some stress I was having initially concerning the situation when my mother was dying of cancer."

In February 1984, a hearing panel of the attorney disciplinary commission recommended Rothenberg's reinstatement be denied.

In December 1984, the review board affirmed the hearing board recommendation.

WHILE ROTHENBERG admits his guilt in transporting stolen goods, he said he is innocent of the murder of William Wells of Glen Carbon in December 1971. "I did not in fact kill the person named in the indictment. I was having an affair with his common-law wife, and I did initiate some intimidating telephone calls to him."

Libel appeal not approved

By JACK C. VENTIMIGLIA

The Illinois Supreme Court last week denied a direct appeal to hear a libel suit that resulted in a $105 million judgment against the parent company of the Belleville News-Democrat and the paper's former editorial writer, Richard Hargraves.

No reason for the denial was given to defendants Hargraves and Capital Cities Communications Inc. The case now goes to the 5th District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon, something Hargraves said he did not want since the appellate court has already ruled on the constitutionality of the suit. Furthermore, attorney fees are mounting, he said.

Hargraves said the case could take six months to a year before being heard by the appellate court, and if another appeal is necessary, more months and years before it gets to the state's high court. Beyond that, Hargraves said he'll fight it all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, a process he estimated could take a total of more than five years.

"We're going to have to get to the federal courts to get out of this," Hargraves said Thursday. Hargraves' attorney, Richard Erdmann, said a formal appeal to the appellate court will be filed in seven to 12 weeks.

Hargraves said the case should not have come this far. He said he has a right to express an opinion.

Hargraves said, "This case is where it is because of I am and who they are and somebody's going to notice it sooner or later."

Whiplash an increasing health problem

By DR. RICHARD C. REINHARDT
Whiplash neck injuries are among the fastest growing health problems today. The increased congestion on streets and highways, power brakes and more powerful engines all contribute to the growing frequency of the type of accident that can result in a whiplash neck injury.

The biggest problem, as I see it, is the ignorance of the whiplash problem. Not a day goes by that someone doesn't suffer a whiplash that he or she is unaware of, at least he or she doesn't know about it for days or even weeks when its devastating after-effects show up in the form of pain and problems.

The U.S. Air Force studies substantiate the cause of whiplash. They have shown that the normal neck can withstand a forward snapping of 50 times the force of gravity before producing major injury. But they also show that the neck can withstand a backward snap, or whiplash, of only five times the force of gravity before injury can be sustained.

At a mere 25 miles per hour, a crash impact creates a force exceeding 300 to 400 pounds on the victim's neck. What does this mean in terms of potential injury?

This sudden, forceful movement often stretches or sprains the ligaments or muscles which hold the spinal segments within a critical range of movement or position.

Failure of the holding ligaments to support the spine allows the vertebrae to become displaced.

This increased stress results in eventual wearing of the disc with 'spur' formation and the spurs will narrow the spinal nerve openings.

It is important to note that virtually every person involved in a moving-vehicle accident suffers whiplash injury to some degree.

Granted, its symptoms are not always readily clear. Some individuals experience no pain or discomfort for weeks following the accident.

All those involved in accidents should seek competent whiplash injury diagnosis.

Left untreated, a whiplash injury can eventually open a veritable 'Pandora's Box' of painful, chronic health problems that can eventually lead to a lifetime of misery.

As the old commercial once said, 'don't be half safe in a whiplash, the other half is your life.'

Organ transplants coordinated by RTA

The St. Louis Regional Transplant Association (RTA), a not-for-profit, Medicare-approved, independent Organ Procurement Agency incorporated in 1974, is the coordinating agency for vital organ donation and recovery in this region. Its board of directors is comprised of hospital representatives, lay persons and transplant surgeons from St. Louis University and Washington University Medical Centers. The RTA coverage area includes Eastern Missouri, the greater metropolitan St. Louis area and the Illinois counties of Madison, Monroe and St. Clair.

In cooperation with the members of the university transplant teams, the RTA provides an organized method to coordinate and facilitate vital organ recovery, a system to provide reimbursement for the costs related to vital organ donation, and an extensive professional education program.

The RTA maintains a 24-hour hotline number to be used by physicians or other hospital personnel to refer a potential donor or to obtain information about donor-related situations. The transplant coordinators from the university transplant teams are the primary contact persons, available at all times to answer questions and to coordinate the organ recovery process.

The association reimburses hospitals and physicians for any expenses incurred as a result of the cadaver kidney recovery. When other vital organs are recovered in conjunction with the kidney recovery, the RTA coordinates arrange for reimbursement of these costs. There is no cost to the family for the organ donation.

The RTA, in association with the members of the university transplant teams, provides professional education programs to medical and nursing groups and on-site presentations to hospital administrative and nursing personnel. These presentations detail the current needs for organ donation and the specifics of vital organ recovery.

Wide acceptance being gained by organ transplants

Organ transplantation procedures are gaining wide national acceptance among physicians who not longer than 10 years ago were concerned about the high postoperative failure rates in patients who developed infections and rejected the organ. Today's outlook for organ transplantation has improved dramatically, largely due to more refined surgical techniques, organ preservation and highly effective drugs that reduce chances of rejection. The following is a brief overview of the various transplant procedures.

Kidney transplants are the most common type of organ transplants worldwide. Nationally, there were more than 45,000 patients on dialysis in 1984, and while estimates indicated that 10,000 patients could benefit from a kidney transplant, due to the shortage of available kidneys, approximately 6,000 kidneys were transplanted. There were approximately 800 patients on dialysis in the St. Louis and Metro East area in 1984 and only 84 kidneys were transplanted. Due to lack of kidney donors, many patients may wait months or years for a chance for a transplant.

Heart transplantation involves a relatively simple procedure as cardiac surgery goes. In 1982 the Health Care Finance Administration reported that an estimated 15,000 hearts were needed yearly for transplantation, and projected that only 1,000 to 2,000 donor hearts would be recovered. Due to the shortage of donors, fewer than 200 hearts were transplanted nationwide in 1984. Locally, 12 hearts were transplanted in St. Louis in 1984. Of these, only four were recovered in Missouri.

The remaining eight hearts were recovered in seven other states. With the advent of new medications to combat rejection and improved diagnostic techniques, the number of heart transplants could increase dramatically if enough donor organs become available.

Liver transplant surgery is increasing and offers hope to patients who formerly had no other alternative, including the 500-600 children with biliary atresia born each year. Nationally, 150 livers were transplanted in 1983 at seven liver transplant centers. During this same period, at one center alone, 71 patients waiting for a liver transplant died before a transplant became available. Over the past two years (1983-84), only eight livers were recovered in St. Louis. Patients who could benefit from this surgery include children with congenital obstructions of bile ducts that cause bile to back up into the liver, causing severe damage, or individuals with hepatitis, cirrhosis, and a number of genetic disorders that cause cirrhosis and eventual liver failure.

Pancreas Transplants are performed in some cases where patients suffer from severe diabetes. The transplanted pancreas eliminates the need for regular insulin injection and can, in some cases, prevent circulatory complications and eye damage. In addition, important studies on the insulin-producing cells for transplantation continue. These extraordinary deficits should stimulate, rather than discourage, efforts to increase organ donation, since multiple studies have unequivocally demonstrated the potentially adequate numbers of ideal vital organ donors in the patients who expire annually.

St. Louis area served by RTA

The St. Louis Regional Transplant Association (RTA) is the Medicare-approved independent Organ Procurement Agency that has served Eastern Missouri, the St. Louis metropolitan area and the Illinois counties of Madison, Monroe and St. Clair since 1974.

The RTA board of directors is comprised of hospital representatives, lay persons, and transplant surgeons of both St. Louis University and Washington University Medical Centers. Over the past 11 years, more than 30 hospitals in the St. Louis area have participated in RTA's vital organ recovery program.

The services RTA provides include education, coordination of organ donation and retrieval, and a system for reimbursement of costs related to vital organ donation.

The effectiveness of an organ donation program is strongly enhanced when staff physicians and nursing staffs of every hospital are aware of the need to accept some responsibility to participate in the system of donor identification and referral to the members of local transplant teams. All involved must be sensitive to the emotions and desires of the donating family, knowledgeable of institutional and other jurisdictional requirements and, finally, dedicated to the concept that organ donation is a positive, humane act that offers a chronically ill person a chance for a new existence.

The RTA, in association with members of the two university transplant teams, provides extensive educational programs for staff members involved in donation efforts to cover these issues.

The RTA maintains a 24-hour "hot line" for donor referrals and a staff of transplant coordinators — registered nurses with special training and experience who are on call for donor referral. These coordinators are available to handle all aspects of vital organ donation including donating-family contact, medical and legal examination, clearance and calling in the appropriate recovery team.

Technical progress in organ preservation and computerized recipient identification have contributed to national and even international sharing programs which allow distribution and utilization of a relatively few available kidney. National hotline systems increase coordination of donor-recipient matching for patients needing a liver, heart or heart-lung transplant.

The St. Louis Regional Transplant Association remains the single agency for vital organ donation in this area. Its major activity and Medicare association involve kidney donation, but organ donation in the broadest sense has been and continues to be a primary commitment. The association reimburses hospitals and physicians for any costs incurred as a result of the cadaver kidney recovery and also assist in coordinating reimbursement arrangements for other vital organ donations. The family of the donor does not bear any cost for this generous gift of organ donation.

Additionally, the St. Louis Regional Transplant Association cooperates with other local agencies that provide public education and services related to organ and tissue donation, such as the National Kidney Foundation and its local affiliate, the Lions Eye Banks, Red Cross Lifeline, and the St. Louis University Bone Bank.

Over the past 10 years, participants in the RTA's community vital organ recovery program by 30 hospitals in this region has resulted in the recovery of more than 500 kidneys, as well as hearts, pancreas, livers, bones and eyes, and has made possible hundreds of successful transplants.

The obvious benefit and joy associated with successful organ transplants is expressed by the parents of a recipient in a note anonymously forwarded to the donor family:

"We grieve at the loss of your daughter but thank God for your unselfish love each morning we see the smiling face of our red-haired toddler — the recipient of a donor kidney which saved his life."

Public awareness of the scope and potential for organ donation is increasing. During the past three years, 89 percent of the donations of kidneys through the RTA and the university transplant teams also involved donation of other organs and tissues. Since 1983, approximately one-third of the referrals to RTA that actually resulted in kidney donation were initiated by donor families. Many families are comforted by the positive aspect of organ donation in an otherwise tragic loss.

Technical progress in organ preservation and computerized recipient identification have contributed to national, and even international, sharing programs which allow distribution and utilization of virtually every available kidney. Beginning in September 1982, a national hotline system was established to facilitate matching extra-renal donors and recipients. By October of 1984, through the hotline, increased coordination of donor-recipient matching resulted in the recovery of 308 livers, 222 hearts and 9 heart-lungs.

Although public awareness is increasing, and vital organs are shared nationwide, every transplant center has an unacceptably long patient waiting list. There are thousands of people whose lives, or quality of life, depend on a kidney transplant. For a suitable kidney, the wait may take months, years, or may be futile. The life expectancy for those patients needing a liver or heart is measured in weeks or a few months, and their only chance for life is a donated organ. Currently, one-third to one-half of those waiting die before a liver or heart transplant becomes available.

The St. Louis Regional Transplant Association is committed to extending and enhancing life through increased organ donations. They invite you to join them in this effort.

Seatbelts saved her

By BEV PFEIFER-HARMS
Staff writer

Seat belts and Webster Groves resident Sara Thiel were not always so close.

Sometimes she would buckle up, sometimes not.

But then Sara "fell in love with a man who always wore his seat belt. I felt obligated to put it on when I was in the car with him."

A serious accident in September 1984 made Sara grateful for husband David's dogged use of seat belts.

On that day seven months ago, Sara and David were in an automobile that collided with a pickup truck.

Sara, 27, sustained a severe head concussion, an injured arm and cuts and bruises. David, 28, fractured his kneecap and received other cuts.

Both were wearing their seat belts. Sara is convinced that her injuries could have been much worse without seat restraints. "David probably would have hurt both legs worse and been thrown into the front end of the car. I probably would have sailed right out."

The outward damage has healed, but her head injury left Sara with a more subtle reminder of the accident.

Although physicians refer to her trauma as "brain damage," Sara has not lost intelligence or motor skills.

But she has experienced "subtle changes in my personality," and has no memory of the accident or the events that led to it, she says.

"It's like I had the accident and then woke up a different person," Sara says.

She recalls being emotional during the first few weeks out of the hospital. She still is learning how to respond to "the new Sara."

DOCTORS HAVE told Sara she probably never will remember the accident. That doesn't bother her.

Doctors also have told her that six months to a year would pass before the brain healed itself—but that the subtle personality changes probably would remain.

As the brain slowly heals, Sara has noticed increasing improvement in her ability to control her emotions.

But the process often seems agonizingly slow, she says. "Sometimes I wish I had just broken my leg and then it would be all over by now," she adds.

For family and friends, Sara and David's accident also has had a dramatic impact.

They always make sure everyone is wearing a seat belt when we are in the car," Sara says. "And people at work tell me they began wearing their seat belts after they heard about my accident."

"THAT MAKES me feel good," she says, but she also is frustrated. "People always think it won't happen to me. I felt that way, too," Sara says.

"Wearing seat belts became a habit with me after meeting David. But even though we always wear them, I still worry about another accident. Just because it happened to me once, doesn't mean it won't happen again."

HITLER:

He said what he intended to do, but the world paid no attention

Adolph Hitler's meteoric rise from a street bum to Germany's dictator and terror of the world is phenomenal, especially when one considers he explained his intentions before he reached power.

Hitler's hatred of Jews and desire for conquest would not have been mysteries if the world simply would have listened to him.

The following are Hitler's own words, many from his best-known book, Mein Kampf, which had made him a millionaire by 1933. In these words, Hitler defined not only what he intended, but also his thoughts as his plans became reality and as he watched the Third Reich crumble.

"Wherever I went I began to see Jews, and the more I saw, the more sharply they became distinguished in my eyes from the rest of humanity. I grew sick to the stomach. I began to hate them. I became anti-Semitic." Hitler, on his first thoughts of Jews, Mein Kampf.

Hitler wrote there must be "a final reckoning with France, the mortal enemy of the German people." Mein Kampf.

"If we speak of soil in Europe to conquer, we can have primarily in mind only Russia. This soil exists for the people which possesses the force to take it." Mein Kampf.

"Germany will either be a world power or will not be at all." Mein Kampf.

"At the beginning of the war (World War I) and during the war, twelve or fifteen thousand of these Hebraic corrupters of the nation had been subjected to poison gas... the sacrifice of millions at the front would not have been in vain." Mein Kampf.

"What I have done, I did according to my conscience, and to the best of my knowledge, filled with concern for my people, realizing the necessity of protecting its honor, in order to lead it again to a position of honor in this world. And should unnecessary sorrow or suffering ever come to my people because of my actions, then I beseech the Almighty God to punish me." Hitler campaign speech, on seizing the Rhineland.

"I shall act as the prophet once again. If international Jewry inside and outside Europe should succeed in thrusting the nations into a world war once again, then the result will not be the Bolshevization of the earth and with it the victory of Jewry, it will be the annihilation of the Jewish race in Europe." Hitler, in a speech to the Reichstag, Jan. 30, 1939.

Hitler had succeeded in a number of conquests prior to the invasion of Poland: March 7, 1936, occupation of the French-held Rhineland — a bloodless victory; March, 1938, annexation of Austria — a bloodless victory; Sept. 29, 1938, the Munich Pact gives Germany Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland — a bloodless victory; March 15, 1939, Germany occupies all of Czechoslovakia — a bloodless victory; late March, 1939, Lithuania signs its Memel district over to Germany — another bloodless victory.

On Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler pushed once more for conquest, this time against Poland.

On Aug. 22, 1939, Hitler told his generals of the Polish invasion. "I shall give a propaganda reason for starting the war. Never mind whether it is plausible or not. The victor will not be asked afterward whether he told the truth or not. In starting and waging a war it is not right that matters, but victory." From captured papers.

On Sept. 1, 1939, Hitler pushed once more for conquest. "Looks like a great deal of blood," Hitler told a Luftwaffe adjutant of the Polish invasion. "This time we won't bring it off without violence."

Concerning the June 21, 1941 German invasion of Russia, Hitler said to a general, "At the beginning of each campaign one pushes a door into a dark, unseen room. One can never know what is hiding inside." He anticipated a swift victory.

In an interview with an INS reporter in late autumn of 1941, Hitler gave his opinion of President Franklin D. Roosevelt: "Ja, Herr Roosevelt—and his Jews! He wants to run the world and rob us all of a place in the sun. He says he wants to save England but he means he wants to be ruler and heir of the British Empire."

"We will always strike first." Declaration of war by Germany on the United States made by Hitler to the Reichstag, Sept. 11, 1941.

On Jan. 24, 1943, upon learning his Sixth Army had 18,000 wounded of the 91,000 men remaining, no food or ammunition, and were freezing to death in the snow before Stalingrad, Hitler responded to Gen.

"Germany will either be a world power or will not be at all."

Friedrich Paulus' request to surrender to the Russians. "Surrender is forbidden! Sixth Army will hold their positions to the last man and the last round." From captured papers.

"So we're off to face to face with my real enemies." Hitler concerning the D-Day invasion, June 6, 1944.

"It is obvious nothing is going to happen to me. Undoubtedly it is my fate to continue on my way and bring my task to completion." To Italian dictator Benito Mussolini, Hitler's comments four hours after the July 20, 1944 assassination attempt on Hitler's life.

"I have fought the Jews with an open vision. I gave them a final warning when the war broke out. I left them no doubt that they would not be spared this time, should they once more thrust the world into a war—that the vermin in Europe would be exterminated once and for all... I have lanced the Jewish abscess, like the others. For this, the future will be eternally grateful to us." Excerpt from Hitler's last testament, Feb. 13, 1945.

"I will not fall into the hands of the enemy dead or alive! After I die, my body shall be burned and so remain undiscovered forever!" Hitler on an aide on April 29, 1945, the day before he and his wife of one day, Eva (Braun) Hitler, committed suicide as the Russians advanced on his underground bunker in Berlin. Hitler reportedly shot himself while his wife took potassium cyanide.

In Adolph Hitler, author John Toland summed up Hitler's death writing, "The flag fell and when he died so did National Socialism and the Thousand-Year Reich. Because of him, his beloved Germany lay in ruins."

"The greatest irony of all was that the driving force of his life—his hatred and fear of Jews—was thwarted. He had intended the elimination of six million Jews to be his great gift to the world. It would lead, instead, to the formation of a Jewish state."

Wish 'Happy Mothers Day' with early feast

What began as a humble idea in 1906 for a tribute to mothers is now celebrated as a national holiday the second Sunday of every May.

It is on Mother's Day that tribute is paid to mom, expressing love and respect in individual, special ways. Traditionally mom will receive gifts like perfume, candy, flowers and jewelry.

Since a great deal of mom's time is spent in the kitchen preparing everyday meals, a thoughtful gift would be the day off from k.p. Breakfast prepared by the children with some help from dad can start mom's day as a truly memorable one.

Surprise her with waffles with poached eggs and a benedict sauce. Deliciously different and easy-to-prepare gourmet breakfast that is fit for a favorite queen.

A blender easily helps prepare the waffle batter. Or use a hand or electric mixer. If a Belgian waffle maker is her present, break it in by making two golden and flakey waffles. The recipe also will work in a regular waffle iron.

To add a finishing touch to mom's menu, serve orange juice, milk and coffee.

Waffles Benedict
4 cheese waffles
4 slices cooked Canadian bacon
4 poached eggs
Sassy Cheese Sauce

Place one waffle on each serving plate, top with 1 slice of bacon and a poached egg. Spoon sauce over egg. Serve immediately.

Poached Eggs
4 eggs
Hot water, milk, broth or other liquid
Lightly oil a saucepan. Add enough liquid to fill at least 2 inches deep. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat to keep water simmering.

Break eggs, one at a time, into a small dish, then slip each egg into water, holding dish close to water's surface. Simmer 3 to 5 minutes, depending on degree of doneness desired.

Remove eggs with slotted spoon, drain and trim edges, if desired.

Cheese Waffles
3 egg yolks
2 cups milk
2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 cup oil

2 egg whites, stiffly beaten
1 1/2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
Preheat Belgian waffle mixer. Put yolks, milk, flour, baking powder, salt and oil in large mixer bowl. Mix on a low speed setting until moistened. Increase to medium; mix until smooth.

By hand, gently fold in cheese and egg whites.

Pour 1/2 cup batter over center of grids. Close waffle maker. Bake until golden. Repeat.

Freeze leftover waffles.
Sassy Cheese Sauce
1 cup milk

Vegetable-stuffed burgers

1 lb. ground beef, pork or lamb
1/4 cup thinly sliced zucchini
1/4 cup thinly sliced mushrooms
1/4 cup thinly sliced green onions
1/4 tsp. dill weed
2 tsp. oil

1 tsp. lemon pepper
1/2 tsp. garlic salt
1 large tomato, cut into 4 slices

Cook zucchini, mushrooms, onions and dill weed in oil in frying pan over medium heat 3 to 4 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat; cool slightly.

Sprinkle lemon pepper and garlic salt over ground meat.

Divide meat into 4 equal portions; form each into a patty 5 inches in diameter. Place an equal amount of vegetable mixture in center of each patty. Carefully fold all edges toward center over filling. Press together securely to seal.

Young cooks add flair, zest to favorite recipe standouts

Cooking is for everyone. Kory Hutchinson, a seventh-grade boy from Oregon, submitted the grand prize winner in Uncle Ben's Young Creative Cooks Recipe Contest, open only to students ages 12 to 18. His winning recipe entry earned him $1,000.

Many of the food trends revealed in adult recipe contests were observed in this year's young cooks contest, which sought innovative recipes using Uncle Ben's converted rice.

Teens, like their adult counterparts, view cooking as a creative activity. Dessert recipes, ranging from lavish to quick and easy, are always favorites. Simple recipes that rely on quality convenience foods are favored by all busy cooks.

Ethnic specialties, particularly Mexican or Tex-Mex, are standbys. "Classic" recipes, no matter how time-involved, are favorites with young cooks who frequently add a signature touch or ingredient.

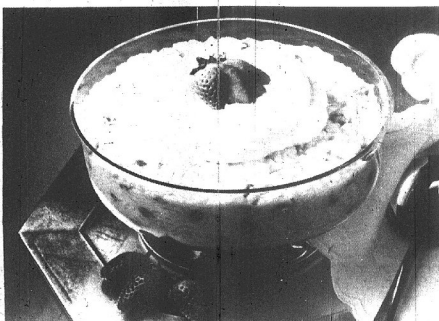

THE GRAND PRIZE WINNING RECIPE. Party Rice Pudding, is a tempting dessert which makes use of convenient pudding mix combined with rice.

Taking on the challenge and creative aspects of cooking has paid off for three other young cooks who garnered cash prizes of $250 each. Stephanie Lonetti, 16, of Maplewood, Minn., created Rio Grande Rice, a lively main dish with Tex-Mex flair. The hearty combination of rice, green chilies, canned chili with beans and shredded cheese makes it a winner for spur-of-the-moment dinner parties.

Time-pressed teen cooks like Stephanie Byrd, 17, Enterprise, Ala., rely on recipes such as Rice and Corn Chowder, a simple-to-make hearty soup that is prepared and served in less than 45 minutes.

Scott Mills, 14, Latrobe, Pa., prepares classic recipes with a new twist. In his winning recipe, Rice à la Romanoff, traditional noodles are replaced with fluffy rice in a creamy, rich combination of sour cream, cottage cheese and shredded cheddar cheese. The dish is an exciting accompaniment that adds elegance to any beef, poultry or pork entrée.

Party Rice Pudding
2 1/2 cups water
1 cup rice
1 tsp. salt
2 pkgs. (3 1/2 oz. each) vanilla pudding
1/4 tsp. nutmeg
5 cups milk
1 cup golden raisins

Party Rice Pudding was worthy of a celebration for a young cook who submitted it as the top winning entry in a national contest.

1 cup chilled whipping cream
2 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. vanilla
Bring water to a boil in medium saucepan. Stir in rice and salt. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand, covered, until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Set aside.

Combine pudding mix and nutmeg in large saucepan. Slowly add milk. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat.

Stir in rice and raisins until well blended.

Spoon into serving bowl or individual serving dishes. Cover and chill.

Just before serving, beat whipping cream, sugar and vanilla in chilled mixing bowl until stiff peaks form. Top pudding with whipped cream; sprinkle with additional nutmeg, if desired.

Makes 12 servings.

Variation: Substitute 2 cups frozen whipped topping, thawed, for the whipping cream, sugar and vanilla.
Rio Grande Rice
2 1/2 cups water
1 cup rice
1 tsp. salt
1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies
2 cans (15 oz. each) chili with beans
1 lb. cheddar cheese, shredded

Shredded lettuce, as desired
Sliced radishes, as desired
Bring water to a boil in medium saucepan. Stir in rice and salt. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes. Remove from heat. Let stand, covered, until all water is absorbed, about 5 minutes. Stir in chilies.

Layer half the rice mixture, 1 can of chili and half the cheese in a 13x9x2-inch baking dish. Repeat rice and chili layers, ending with chili. Cover with aluminum foil and bake at 375° for 25 to 30 minutes.

Uncover and sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake, uncovered, until cheese is melted, about 5 minutes. Garnish with lettuce and radishes. Makes 10 servings.

Spread around the flavor of fresh fruit all year long with freezer jams.

Freezer jam locks in spring flavors of fresh strawberries

Now is the time of year to "pick" luscious, mouth-watering, delectable red and orange colored fruits from this season's best. It's the perfect time, too, to take two of the most popular fruits from garden stalls and supermarkets and transform them into a delectable jam to enjoy over the next few months.

Strawberry Orange Marmalade will grace any table at breakfast or afternoon tea. It's guaranteed to impress family and friends alike, spread over biscuits, toast, muffins or croissants.

What is especially marvelous about this marmalade is that it is easy to prepare. It is one of the quick, no-cook freezer jams that is a boon to a busy jam-maker. Just follow the easy directions, pour the fruit mixture into reusable plastic containers and store in the freezer.

Because Strawberry Orange Marmalade requires no cooking, its luscious flavors remain at their fullest peak. A liquid fruit pectin that supplements the fruit's natural pectin is the pectin that helps the jam to set and locks in the fresh fruit flavor and color.

Take advantage of strawberries now by whipping up a no-cook Strawberry Jam, flavored with the tart taste of lime juice, another sure winner.

Strawberry Orange Marmalade
2 medium oranges
1 pt. fully ripe strawberries
¾ cup water
½ cup sugar (2 6 oz.) sugar
2 tsp. lemon juice
1 pouch liquid fruit pectin
Stem and thoroughly crush, one layer at a time, about 1 pint strawberries; measure 1 cup.
Section 2 medium oranges, reserving peel; dice the sections and measure 1 cup.
Peel off and discard about half the white membrane from orange peel; slice very thin with sharp knife or slicer.
Place sliced peel and ¾ cup

Worlds of Fun offers brand new attractions

By LOIS KENDALL
Staff writer

Question: Where in the world is the fun flowing this summer?

Answer: Worlds of Fun, the innovative entertainment complex in Kansas City.

Question: What if I've already been to Worlds of Fun and I'm looking for something new?

Answer: Worlds of Fun is new with brand new rides, shows, attractions and restaurants.

Since its opening in 1973, the Worlds of Fun theme park has doubled in size, now encompassing more than 220 acres. In 1982 its sister attraction, Oceans of Fun, was added—a 60-acre water park featuring more than 35 water-related attractions.

Last year's addition of the Fury of the Nile, a wild ride over raging rapids, marked the largest expansion in the park's history and became the single most popular attraction.

Not content to rest on its past laurels, the park has added even more new attractions for this summer season, including the Haunted Theatre, "Stax of Wax," the Festhaus, Inn of the Four Winds and the Rainbow Brite review.

The Haunted Theatre is a total sight and sound experience which blends the elements of magic, fright and humor. Previously the Tivoli Music Hall, it has been transformed to become a replica of an abandoned theatre circa 1900. Its 25-minute presentation will feature numerous sets, costumes, audioanimatronic characters, unique sound and lighting effects and specially-designed illusions. The Haunted Theatre was created exclusively for Worlds of Fun by internationally-known magician, Mark Wilson, and designed by Brian Bartholomew, Emmy-award-winning set designer.

"Stax of Wax" is a nostalgic rock 'n' roll review featuring music from the 50's and 60's. The Festhaus is a multiple-use facility which features international food and entertainment, while the Inn of the Four Winds is the park's first ever sit-down, full-service restaurant.

The popular children's character Rainbow Brite will headline a new musical review at the park. The 15-minute adventure featuring Rainbow and her favorite Sprite, Twink, plus the villains of Rainbow Land, Murky Dismal and Lurky, will be presented six times daily at the Rainbow Pavilion in the park's Aerodrome Section.

A creation of Hallmark Properties, Rainbow Brite has been featured in several nationally-televized prime time specials, numerous personal appearances and has established herself as one of the most popular children's characters of all time.

Worlds of Fun, located at I-435, exit 54, in Kansas City, Mo., will be open for weekends only during April and May, beginning daily operation May 30.

Postmaster advises early application for passports

The demand for passports has increased 11 percent over a year ago, and with the heavy vacation season fast approaching, travelers are urged to apply for passports early.

Normally, an applicant can get a passport within two or three weeks, according to St. Louis Postmaster Robert Sedler, but travelers going abroad should apply for passports four to six weeks before their scheduled trip to avoid taking unnecessary chances by delaying application.

To apply for a passport, applicant must have proof of citizenship, proof of identification, and two identical 2-by-2 inch portrait type photos. Those who hold an expired passport may be able to apply for a new passport by mail. First, the passport must have been issued after the bearer's 18th birthday, and must have been issued within eight years. If these prerequisites are met, a form DPS-82, obtainable from any passport acceptance facility, can be submitted along with the photos.

In St. Louis, groups and individuals planning foreign travel are encouraged to contact their participating post office for more specific documentation requirements.

Passports for applicants over 18 are valid for 10 years and cost $35 plus a $7 "execution fee" in most cases. Passports for applicants under 18 are valid for only five years—because applicants' appearance changes more rapidly—and cost $20.

Spafest combines luxury, fitness

Health and fitness has developed into a national craze and the "Spa" vacation into a new travel phenomenon. Coronet Travel's fifth International Spafest combines the luxury of a spa with the excitement of Europe.

The 10-day tour, leaving July 20, includes two night stops in Iceland and Luxembourg and a five-night stay at the famous Badischer Hof Hotel in Baden Baden, Germany. Because this trip attracts health and fitness people from around the United States, it will give passengers the choice of flying from Chicago, Orlando or New York. The $1,320 price is all-inclusive.

Jesse Johnson develops his own style of music

By ROBIN WELLES
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD—There's a new act around in the image of Michael Jackson and Prince.

Jesse Johnson's the name and he's due to give the Jackson-Prince combine a run for the big money.

The 24-year-old Johnson's first solo album, for A&M, is out. It's called "Jesse Johnson's Revue"—to make clear it's a solo production.

And it's also clear that Johnson is no clone of Jackson-Prince, although there is a physical resemblance. Jesse's style, polished in Rock Island, Ill., biker bars, is very much his own. He writes songs that are "mostly autobiographical."

"I couldn't write 'I Want My Girl' or 'She Won't Let Me Go' if I hadn't experienced them. And I'll tell you, if you play in a biker bar long enough, you find there's no shortage of things to write about. It may be painful—real life often is—but it's true."

Coincidentally, he has known Prince, a Minneapolis product, for quite some time.

While still in Rock Island, Jesse said that he "met a guy from Minneapolis who knew Prince. He kept telling me that I should go up to Minnesota. I met other bands from there, and they helped convince me, too, so I finally went. I didn't know a soul there—I just

Auction nets $293,000

The 1985 "all new" Channel 9 TV auction ended April 28, raising $293,252 for St. Louis' Public Broadcasting System station. The fundraiser, usually a 10-day event, was shortened to four days and yet still sold nearly 3,000 items.

"We made almost as much money as last year in only 35 live broadcast hours instead of 36," said Auction and Special Events Manager Beverly Barozinsky. "We're pleased that the new format was so successful. I think it is due to viewer satisfaction with fewer program pre-emptions, a quicker auction pace, greater focus on the items, and more high-quality merchandise." The 1984 TV auction grossed $352,801.

Proceeds from the 1985 auction will go toward program acquisition costs and daily operation expenses.

took the money I'd saved, packed a little suitcase, grabbed my equipment and got on a bus."

Jesse joined a band called Time and soon met Prince. He was still with Time when he decided to go solo.

Mortality table in 1789

Edward Wigglesworth, a Harvard professor, compiled in 1789 the first mortality table in the United States, thus making possible the first computation of insurance premiums and reserves on a scientific basis.

Prayer
By Joyce Timko

God is only a prayer away
He's waiting and watching today
When the many things go wrong
God will always make us strong.
God is only a prayer away
When days are sad and dark
He can give you a brand new start
Count your many blessing okay!

Missing
By Lucy L. Johnson

Miss all the hub-bub that was so much a part of you
And the lively debates that we had too
When the weather's warm, I miss your outdoor cooking

And the way you cut my hedges down when I wasn't looking
I miss your smile, when you're not here, it isn't any fun
Let's face it, I just simply miss you, son!

Between us
By Marlowe C. Dickson

I would press
Your hand
Daily
In a way
Known
Only between us
If the touch
Be gone
Words
Would never fill
The void.

Art exhibit in St. Louis

Friends of the Arch are presenting "The Arch In All Seasons," an exhibit of watercolors by St. Louis artist Charles H. Wallis. The exhibit, in celebration of the 20th anniversary of the completion of the Gateway Arch, will feature 26 paintings of various views and moods of the Arch. The paintings will be exhibited in the Special Exhibits Gallery in the Museum of Westward Expansion beneath the Arch, through June 30. Wallis has a "straightforward representational approach, with colors that are rich, warm and freshly harmonious... a look that is unmistakably his," critics have said.

"The Arch in All Seasons" features the painting "Early Morning Fog," an ethereal impression of the Arch through a light blue fog. Signed, limited-edition prints, in addition to posters of "Early Morning Fog," will be available through Friends of the Arch at the gift shops at the Arch and Old Courthouse.

The exhibit will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily (through May 24), and from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. (May 25 to June 30).

On Entertainment

Zeljko Ivanek and Jack Lemmon appear in Mass Appeal.

Mass Appeal

1 2 3 4

Although it has just opened in St. Louis, Mass Appeal is not a "new" movie. It was first released late in 1984 to (hopefully) qualify Jack Lemmon as best actor at Oscar time. Lemmon did not get a nomination but his performance in Mass Appeal can still be legitimately rated as one of the very best in his long, distinguished career.

Lemmon plays a Catholic priest (Father Tim Farley) who pastors a comfy, no-hassle parish. He drives a Mercedes, enjoys good wine and cracking jokes. Despite his vow of chastity, Father Tim leads the life of Riley with all the creature comforts and protections his black suit and white collar can provide. His good friend and traveling companion, Monsignor Tom Burke (Charles Durning) runs the diocesan seminary.

One morning, during one of Father Tim's comic, ineffectual sermons, the question of whether or not women should become priests is raised by Father Tim. Quite unexpectedly, a young jogger who has wandered into church refuses to accept Father Tim's offhanded answers and causes a mild stir at St. Francis' Church. The pesky questioner turns out to be seminarian Mark Dolson, a young man with an honest, if not misdirected vocation and a questionable past by priestly standards.

Mark (played by Zeljko Ivanek, a young veteran of the New York stage who trained at the Yale School of Drama and the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Art) is seen as a target for deportation from the seminary by Monsignor Burke.

When Father Tim objects, Monsignor Burke gets even by making Mark a deacon at St. Francis. Hence, the problem child gets dumped right in Father Tim's lap.

Mass Appeal was a very successful stage drama written by Bill C. Davis, who also penned this screenplay. The film is not anti-priesthood, anti-Catholic or anti-anything.

It is a superb rendering of questions relating to the quality and sincerity of commitments. The casting is perfect. Glenn Jordan's direction is right on the mark and the film's humorous moments are frequent. I highly recommend Mass Appeal for adult audiences of at least casual religious affiliation.

By the way, if you stay for the very end of the credits you will notice a dedication of Mass Appeal to the late founder of McDonalds, Ray Kroc. That is because his widow, Joan B. Kroc, is the executive producer of Mass Appeal.

Mrs. Kroc heads up Operation Cork Productions, named as the presenters of Mass Appeal.

Gotcha

1 2 3 4

Every once in a while a film comes along that looks like another teen trasher, but it turns out to be a pleasant surprise. (Like Risky Business.)

Well, folks, let me be upfront with you. Gotcha is not one of those films.

It begins on a college campus in California (don't they all), where a group of guys who can't get dates play a game called Gotcha. It is a hide-and-go-seek game, using a water pistol or pellet gun that sprays red dye on its victims. They are then retired from play to the laundry room.

One of the game's leading players, Anthony Edwards, leaves California to go on vacation in France and Spain with his buddy. While in Paris, he meets a CIA spy played by Linda Fiorentino, who ensnares him in a romantic involvement so that she can use him as an unwitting courier of a top secret role of film from East Germany.

Gotcha is a movie that makes parents look stupid and adults in general look untrustworthy. Even as the action switches from Europe back to California, Gotcha never gathers any momentum. It has a few humorous moments, but it is not enough to make Gotcha a got-to-see movie.

Beware. Despite a clever promotional campaign and lots of TV ads, Gotcha is a bummer.

After split, Warriors eye East Side, Alton

By GREGG OCHOA

Journal Sports Editor

If the Granite City High baseball team could have looked into a crystal ball, they may have saved something for later.

The Warriors pounded Centralia in the first game of a doubleheader with a barrage of offensive weapons Saturday. And, then mixed in a perfect blend of pitching as reinforcement.

Centralia became a casualty as Granite City won the opener 9-0. The Warriors, however, lost the second game 4-2.

Both games were full of contrasts — and similarities.

Allen Zentgraf and Ernie Gray combined to limit the Orphans to just three hits in the opener. They were supported nicely by 10 hits, including a 3-for-4 performance by John Konkovich and a two-hit effort by Shane Cole, who boosted his average past the .375 mark.

In the second game, pitching was the key for the Orphans as Granite City was held to five hits by junior Rick Shipley. The Warriors stranded eight runners and Centralia held off a late charge to win.

The Warriors are now 15-10 after the split. The Orphans, whose season has been cursed by the weatherman, are 4-7.

Granite City will now face the meat of its Southwestern Conference schedule with crucial games against East St. Louis and Alton this week.

"We have fate in our own hands," said Granite City coach Bob Stegemeier of the conference race. "Alton gave us some help. We just have to take the games one at a time. If win (all of them) we can tip the conference championship."

CENTRALIA: Wert 1B; Timmons 1B, 2B; Reichenbacher 1B, RBI; Taylor 3-1B, 3 RBI; Dillingham 1B, LOB 7. WP: Shipley (7-inn) SO-6, BB-2.

GRANITE CITY: Chomko 1B, RBI; Moore 1B, 2B, RBI; Hinterser 1B; Cole 1B, LOB 5. LP: T. Gray (5-inn) SO-3, BB-4.

First Game

The Warriors proved they meant business. Zentgraf retired the first eight batters he faced and allowed just two runners to reach base as he pitched the first four innings.

"That was my plan," said Stegemeier of Zentgraf's stint. "I wanted to give him some work, but didn't want him to get sore. I plan to use him again (this) week."

Zentgraf allowed only one hit, struck out six and didn't walk a batter.

Granite City, however, didn't miss a beat when Gray came in the fifth inning. Gray surrendered a lead-off double to Phil Wert, but then didn't allow another Orphan to reach base until the seventh when Wert drew a walk.

With two outs, Centralia loaded the bases, but Gray got Andy Smith to look at called third strike to end the game.

"They both did a good job," Stegemeier said of Zentgraf and Gray. "They did what we expected them to do."

Granite City scored a single run in the third. Bill Moore walked, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch. Moore easily crossed the place when Cole smacked a base hit to left.

The Warriors added three runs in the fourth. Todd Hinterser walked, went to third on Konkovich's single and scored on an error by catcher Scott Biesse.

Dennis Gaudreault singled home Konkovich. Jim Chomko then scored Gaudreault, who had swiped second, with a base hit.

"Chomko's come back," Stegemeier pointed out. "He had been in a slump."

The Warriors got two more runs in the fourth when Kurt Hylla singled, stole second and raced around the bases when Konkovich beat out punt.

Smith had fielded the throw, but after seeing that Konkovich was already across the bag threw over third baseman Chris Reichenbacher's head in an attempt to get Hylla who raced home. On the play, Konkovich ended up on third and scored on Gaudreault's sacrifice fly.

"He makes things happen," Stegemeier said of Konkovich. "He gets on base a lot."

Konkovich, a senior, reached safely in three of his four at-bats. He scored two runs and drove in two more in the sixth with a triple to rightfield.

The two-out triple capped a three run inning. The other run was scored by Steve Davis, who had entered the game as a pinch

Trojans' Young helps keep Madison on track

Madison High finished tied for their overall in the 20th annual O'Fallon Relays last Thursday. The host school won the event with 98 points. Salem was runner-up with 41 points. Lebgorn and Madison each had 39 points.

Other schools in order of finish were: Waterloo (36), Jerseyville (35), Freeburg (32), Mascoutah (31), Dupu (20), Roxana (19), and Belleville Althoff (17).

The only individual winner for Madison was Reggie Young who took first in the long jump (27-1). At the recent Relays, Madison placed second overall with 74 points. DuQuoin win the event with 90 points.

Top performances for Madison were Redizel were Redizel (second in the shot put, and first in the "heavyweight 100"); Wilson Howard (second in the 110 high hurdle); Reggie Young (second in long jump and third in the triple jump); The Trojans' 800-relay team took first in 1:33.8. Team members were Porter, Young, Reggie Banks and Terrence Hicks. Hicks was also with in the 100.

GCHS softball

The Granite City High School girls softball team ran into some tough luck over the weekend.

The Warriors dropped both of its games in the annual Cahokia Invitational softball tournament. On Friday, the host Comanches clobbered Granite City 10-0 in a five-inning game.

In the consolation bracket, the Warriors were eliminated from play by Mascoutah, 5-1.

Granite City was paced by Karen Sykes who was 1-for-3 and Keri Smith who was 1-for-2 plate performance.

Pitcher Michelle Morgan took the loss. She hurled six innings.

Striking out one and issuing four walks.

The Warriors got their only run in the first inning on two hits and two errors. Mascoutah, however, answered with four runs in the bottom of the first and a single run in the fifth.

All told the Indians had eight hits and took advantage of two Granite City errors.

"We don't score a lot," said Warrior Coach Jim Davis.

"That's been the story of our whole season. It seems we can't get a hit with runners on base."

The Warriors are now 3-11 on the year.

SUR Opens Gate

The St. Louis International Raceway, Route 203 just outside Madison, held its first race on the newly remodeled road course over the weekend.

The attendance was an estimated 5,050, track officials said.

Twelve different classes raced over the two days; six on Saturday and six on Sunday. All drivers were amateurs.

James King of Belleville was the only area winner. King took the checkered flag in the Group 3 race of the Sports Car Club of America Inaugural Cup Nationals Sunday.

Speedway Results

Joe Ross of Springfield won the UMP Late Model stock car race at the Tri-City Speedway last Friday.

Steve Quartermouse won the Sportsman-Feature. Quartermouse and Jake Seets won the heat races.

Charlie Morris won the Bomber Car Main Event. Morris and Mike Ross each won the heat races.

The speedway will host the World of Outlaw Sprint Cars this Friday.

Boosters Do It Again

If you happen to drive by the GCHS football stadium, you no doubt noticed some changes.

Across the front of the press box is a new sign. The word "Warriors" is painted in big red letters with a white "GC" inside a red arrowhead next to it.

The sign was painted by Charles Mosby with money donated to the school from the GC Boosters Club. The sign is the finishing touches on the spruce-up project of the football stadium. Last fall, the Boosters had the bleachers and concession stand repainted in the high school colors of red and black.

Other projects the Boosters have raised money for, include:

a new backstop at Varsity Field

— new uniforms for the GCHS girls softball team

— new track uniforms

— new baseball uniforms

GCHS Track

The Warriors managed just 10 points in the Orphan Relays last weekend in Centralia.

Granite City placed 11th in the 15-team field.

Senior Eric Graves was the only Granite City athlete to place in the meet.

East St. Louis took team honors with 120 points and Centralia was second with 82 points.

Park baseball parade

The annual Granite City Park District little league baseball parade was held last Saturday. The event—which marks the beginning of the summer season for the youngsters ran through the streets of Granite City and concluded at Wilson Park. runner. Davis scored on a wild throw as he attempted to steal third.

Granite City ran the Orphans ragged in both games. The Warriors swiped a total of eight bases to boost their total to 71 for the season. Granite City leads the Southwestern Conference in that department.

For Centralia, the lack of offense is a reoccurring nemesis.

"That's been our problem all year; with the bats," said Coach Dick Carpenter.

Second Game

The Orphans' bats came alive in the second game, giving just enough support to Shipley who pitched a complete game.

"I was a little worried about letting him go the whole way; he's only a junior and we are swamped with games (this) week," Carpenter said.

Due to make-up games, Centralia plays three doubleheaders and two single games this week.

The Orphans took advantage of Tim Gray's early control problems with two quick runs in the first.

Gray, who hadn't pitched in a week, walked the first three batters he faced and then gave up back-to-back RBI singles by Reichenbacher and Rod Taylor. Granite City, after leaving four runners on base in the first two innings, got a run in the third, cutting Orphan lead to 2-1.

Fred Becker walked and swiped second and third. He trotted home on a single to right by Moore.

For the game, Becker stole four bases. He also had another steal in the first game when he came in as a pinch runner.

Becker stretched his string to 16 attempts in a row without being caught.

It's was Becker's speed that helped keep the Warriors rally going in the seventh.

With Cole on first, Becker legged out a bunt that Shipley fielded but threw wildly to first allowing Cole to third.

Chomko then scored Cole with a bloop hit into right field. However, Shipley got the next to batters to end the game.

Centralia had taken a 4-1 lead in the fifth inning on a single by Taylor which scored Wert and Tony Timmons.

The Warriors lost a runner in the sixth in a play that proved to be pivotal.

Moore led off the inning with a double and took third a shallow hit by Hinterser. Steve Davis then hit a fly ball to center to Timmons whose throw nailed Moore at the plate. Moore elected not to slide and was out on a sweeping tag by catcher Ken Dillingham.

That play loomed even larger in the seventh, when Granite City scored once, but left runners at first and third when the game ended.

"He should have scored. I thought," Stegemeier said. "We gambled and got thrown out. That happens, but we also score runs because we are aggressive."

Timmons has been a three year starter for the Orphans and has one of the best throwing arms on the team, his coach noted.

Granite City plays at East St. Louis today (Wednesday) and hosts Alton on Friday. Both games start at 4 p.m. The Warriors play at O'Fallon on Saturday, May 11. The first game of the doubleheader starts at noon.

SIU-E Cougars bounce back

By AL BARNES
For the Journal

MACOMB, Ill. — The mark of a championship team is its ability to snap back after what appears to be a devastating defeat.

In this case, it was a pair of losses dealt to the Cougars of Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville here last Saturday by Western Illinois University. The scores were 2-0 and 9-3.

The double setback appeared to the death knell in SIU-E's hopes for a NCAA post season tournament bid. But the Cougars shrugged off the losses and came roaring back Sunday to stop the same Leathernecks, 9-7 and 12-3.

Now, boasting a sensational 30-11-1 record, the Cougars will prepare of their do-or-die four game series with Lewis University this weekend at Cougar Field.

Last Sunday, Pete Delkus relieved John Groenmet and recorded the win in the opener.

Delkus' clutch performance was important, but it was the dramatic grand-slam by Tom Zielinski which pulled the game out of the fire. Tony Deinas was the star of the second game. He gave up just five hits in the second game in posting his ninth victory of the season.

The nine victories is a new record for the Cougars.

Talking turkey (at last) with a first time hunter

By LARRY BULUS
Outdoor Columnist

My heart was pounding madly, my hands trembled and my legs shook so badly I could see my pant legs vibrating as though motor-driven. The scene before me was one of the most thrilling outdoor sights I had ever seen and I watched, thoroughly entranced. My friend, Paul Sexton, had brought me to this most thrilling moment. He was seated a few feet behind me, his back against a tree, and in between clucks with his diaphragm call he whispered softly, "They're coming this way. Get ready."

And indeed they were! Two tom turkeys, tails spread in magnificent multi-colored fans strutting with all the pomp and bravado of their species, started our way across the open field. Remembering Paul's earlier admonition, I dared not move a muscle, for we were seated on the very edge of the woods facing open field. There wasn't a blade of grass over six inches high between us and the turkeys. One false move, one slight motion and I knew the turkeys and my chances for a shot would both vanish in seconds.

The truth is, I had never before been turkey hunting! Every year it seemed the bass fishing was good just before turkey season, so I didn't go. It got to be embarrassing when people asked if I'd gotten a turkey and I replied that I'd never even gone.

This year, however, I asked Paul who lives in Montgomery County, if he would take me turkey hunting. "Why... heck yes," he answered, "just let me know when you can come." A tall, thoroughly likable fellow in his mid-twenties, Paul is a veteran outdoorsman, as adept with a shotgun, rifle or fishing rod as anyone I know.

"I'll be out the second day of the season," I told him. "Be at the house at 4:30," he said. "I'll try to have a bird roasted the evening before."

In turkey parlance, that meant he'd try to locate a tom turkey going to roost the evening before, saving much of the guess work of where to look for a callable bird in the morning.

My car came to a halt at Paul's door right on time. Rather matter-of-factly, I thought, he mentioned he'd killed a 21-pound turkey the previous morning. "There's another one there: I roosted him last night. That's your turkey," he said, flashing me a wide grin. I liked that confidence.

We made our way along the edge of a wood's strip, with wide open fields on the left. Paul pointed to the tallest crown of a distant woods and said, "That turkey we're after roosted just a little bit inside that woods." I was carrying my goose gun, the Ithaca Mag 10 shotgun. The chamber held a Federal Premium buffered load of copper-plated No. 4 shot and I backed that up with similar loads in No. 2 shot.

The woods were still as I settled myself against the tree trunk, with only the gentle whisper of a light wind in the tree tops. Five minutes later the turkey gobbled straight ahead of us and goose bumps rose on my skin. A few minutes later, just inside the woods corner, I saw a hen turkey fly down from the roost tree and, moments later, another fluttered down.

I strained for sight of them or the tom turkey. Without turning my head I shifted my eyes across the field and my heart skipped a beat! There, perhaps 100 yards distant, stood a magnificent tom turkey, its tail fanned out, its head held supremely erect, and its body feathers extended and fluffed out. Around it scurried several hens, pecking at something on the ground.

There wasn't a bit of cover between us so I sat as still as a stump, my only movement being my trembling hands and legs. I knew that calling a tom turkey within range during the spring breeding season when he already has hens clustered about him is a near-impossible task, but Paul called as seductively as possible and several times the tom turkey slowly came our way while the hens went about the business of scratching for food. Once he came almost within range but I sized up the distance and decided that even with the big gun a sure kill would be risky. Presently, both the tom and hens drifted to the far edge of the field and my heart sank.

Undaunted, Paul called from time to time, I thought surely he'd come up to us again, glancing to the field's center, there stood another tom turkey, its tail fanned and head held proudly erect. I had been so intent on watching the first tom that I hadn't noticed this second one. Presently, the farthest turkey left the wood's edge and walked out within 10 yards of the second turkey. They were now about 80 yards distant and Paul poured on the calling.

This 45-minute show in the open field had been thrilling but now the pay-off seemed closer. On and on the two great birds came, the left one being closer and cocking his head warily this way and that. Just a few yards more, I thought, and you'll have wrapped your body toes around a roost limb for the last time.

Somehow, my hands and legs suddenly quit shaking, for this was the moment of truth. I looked down that ribbed barrel and settled the silver bead at the base of the bird's neck. The shotgun roared and the turkey went down as if struck by lightning. Paul hollered, "Get up there quick and kneel on him." I was numb from sitting so long but I dashed up and pounced on my prize. I was happy and excited and stammering like a school kid, slapping Paul on the back and shaking his hand for the great job of calling he'd done. "You did your part," he said, grinning. "It took a lot of willpower to sit that still for so long and wait until the turkey got within range." It was 48 long steps from where my rump was a hole in the ground to where the turkey fell. I tagged the bird and, still chattering excitedly, slung it over my shoulder and we hiked back to the house.
